We undertake to maintain our part of the war free from hatred, brutality, or graft, true to the American purpose and ideals.

Aware of the temptations incident to camp life and the moral and social wreckage involved, we covenant together to live the clean life and seek to establish the American uniform as a symbol and guarantee of real manhood.

If we become officers, we pledge our example and our influence to make these ideals dominant in the American Army.

At Camp Cody, N. M., awaiting the arrival of the national guard, the Y. M. C. A. started a branch in one of the government buildings for the colored troops on guard. As soon as the first association building was completed, it was opened for the workmen employed in construction of the camp and has been a popular place for them. A Mexican version was conducted for the Mexicans by a cultured Christian Mexican and a service in English in the evening for workmen. In the twenty-four hours following pay day, as an agent of the Wells Fargo Express Company, the association sent out money orders to workmen's families totaling $1,275.

In the officer's camps and those of the Indiana national guardmen about to sail for France classes in French gained an attendance of hundreds. Men learned to speak French "well enough to get along with." In a few weeks French instructors from leading universities have given their time for the summer not only to teaching in the camps by the conversational method but prepared special handbooks in French and the classes are conducted in a way that puts sparkle and fun to them. An equal opportunity has been found to teach great numbers of foreign birth English. In one camp 600 men volunteers were found who could scarcely speak a word. These were turned over to the Y. M. C. A. construction.

I think that this incident will please you as much as it pleases me, wrote Acting Commandant Bryan to the Newport Navy Association. A friend said It has been my privilege to talk personally with some of these fellows.

In course of a conversation with a young lad from New York I asked him: How are you getting along etc. Are you keeping your life clean? He replied: I will not be ashamed to kiss my mother when I get back. This counts for more than the warfare waged by battleships, submarines, etc. The success of our Army and Navy will depend to a great extent on the measure of success that we have in fulfilling our obligations to the boys here among us. Away from mother and her influence we must combat the evil in our city and furnish substitutes. Last summer this Y. M. C. A. was obliged to turn away and let sleep on its floors about 15,000 men."
